NC State’s
History Graduate Student Association presents the

2017 GRADUATE STUDENT HISTORY CONFERENCE

Keynote Address:

“Memoirs, Authors, and History-Writing: Why Oral History is Good to Think With”

by Dr. Luise White,
University of Florida

Saturday, March 25
Riddick Hall, NC State North Campus

NC State University promotes equal opportunity and prohibits discrimination and harassment based upon one’s age, color, disability, gender identity, genetic information, national origin, race, religion, sex (including pregnancy), sexual orientation and veteran status.
Program of Events

Registration Opens
9:00 am

Light refreshments and coffee in Riddick Lounge

Opening Remarks
10:00 am

Dr. David Zonderman, North Carolina State University

Session One
10:30 am - 12:00 pm

Urban Renewal and the Local Experience
Riddick 321

Moderated by Sarah Soleim, North Carolina State University

Life in HACA’s “Ghetto”: The Impacts of Segregation and Racism on African-American Public Housing in Austin, Texas, 1928–1972
   Lindsey Waldenberg, Texas State University

Gentrification, Preservation, and the History of Northside
   Victoria Hensley, Middle Tennessee State University

Comments by Dr. William Sturkey, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Land, Resources, and Historical Development
Riddick 325

Moderated by Steve Lechner, North Carolina State University

El Chamizal: Accretion & Avulsion
   Ethan Ley, North Carolina State University

Water, Logistics, and the Limits of Roman Imperial Control in the East
   Gabriel Moss, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Comments by Dr. Frederico Freitas, North Carolina State University
Undergraduate Panel
Riddick 450
This represents the second annual representation of Honors Undergraduate students at the History Graduate Conference. This panel is held in the spirit of highlighting the quality of work of students throughout the history department at NC State.

Moderated by Jeanette Shaffer, North Carolina State University

Two Years on Market Street: The Birth of Smith & Wesson and a Modern American Enterprise
Michael Helms, North Carolina State University

The Frozen Army: Analyzing Germany’s Expensive Occupation of Norway
Logan Newsome, North Carolina State University

The Mother of Frankish Kings
Andrew Martin, North Carolina State University

Comments by Dr. David Gilmartin, North Carolina State University

Lunch 12:00-12:50 pm
Riddick Lounge

Keynote Address 1:00-2:00 pm

Memoirs, Authors, and History-Writing: Why Oral History is Good to Think With
Dr. Luise White, University of Florida

Session Two 2:15-3:30 pm

Prospective Student Panel

Dr. Julia Rudolph, Professor and Director of Graduate Programs
Dr. Craig Friend, Professor and Director of Public History
Dr. David Zonderman, Professor and History Department Head
Sarah Soleim, Public History Ph.D. Student
Jeanette Shaffer, Public History M.A. Student
Tyler Ellis, History M.A. Student
Archives and the Potentials of Digital History

Riddick 325

Moderated by Jason Norris, North Carolina State University

  Steve Lechner, North Carolina State University

Visual Culture of the Civil Rights Movement: Testing Berger Through Image Analytics

  Nicole Coscolluela, North Carolina State University

Comments by Dr. Ryan Shaw, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Sovereignty and Native Lands: The Haudenosaunee and Choctaw Experiences

Riddick 450

Moderated by Susan Rodriguez

The State of Chah-ta: Choctaw Planters, Dependency, and the Movement to Create a Choctaw State

  Robert York, North Carolina State University

“Haudenosaunee Governance” A Resistance to European Sovereignty

  Taylor Greene, North Carolina State University

Comments by Dr. Jenny Tone-Pah-Hote, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Coffee Break

3:30-3:45 pm

Riddick Lounge
Session Three  3:45-5:00 pm

Students, Reformers, and Civil Rights on the Local Level
Riddick 321

Moderated by Kelsey Zavelo, Duke University

“This organization will co-operate in every local endeavor”: The Revitalization and Activism of the NAACP in Pottstown, Pennsylvania, 1951-1969
Matthew Washington, Morgan State University

Powering Forward: Direct-Action and the 1960 Youth Leadership Conference in Raleigh, North Carolina
Brian Sutell, University of North Carolina, Greensboro

Comments by Dr. Catherine Conner, North Carolina State University

Philanthropy and Gender in Early Modern Europe
Riddick 325

Moderated by Sarah Almond, North Carolina State University

“N’avez-vous point peur de vous brûler le sang?”: Chocolate, Morality, and Class in 18th Century French Painting
Anne Mild, North Carolina State University

Jonas Hanway and the Institutionalization of Associational Philanthropy: State and Society in Eighteenth-Century England
Peter Raia, North Carolina State University

The Lieutenant Nun: Violence and Gender in Early Seventeenth Century Latin America
Ryan Lenzmeier, North Carolina State University

Comments by Dr. Jay Smith, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Reform, Diplomacy, and the Making of Modern Turkey
Riddick 450

Moderated by Clancy Hecht-Nielsen, North Carolina State University

Looking Forward: The Liberal Forwards after the Armenian Massacres, 1896-1899
Lynda Kellam, University of North Carolina, Greensboro

From Neutrality to Active Alliance: Turkish Foreign Policy, 1945-1952
Turgay Akbaba, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Comments by Dr. Nancy Mitchell, North Carolina State University

Closing Remarks 5:00 pm

Riddick Lounge
Acknowledgements

The History Graduate Student Association would especially like to thank Dr. Julia Rudolph, Dr. David Zonderman, Ingrid Hoffius, and Courtney Hamilton for their invaluable assistance and support in making this event possible.

We would also like to extend our gratitude to the Graduate Student Association for supporting this event with a Block Grant. Thank you to our colleagues in the Sociology Graduate Student Association, Nicholas Membrez-Weiler, Holly Benton, and Dr. Steve McDonald for their co-sponsorship of our grant application.

Thank you to everyone who has made this event possible, including our panelists, commentators, volunteers, and keynote speaker, Dr. Luise White.